

Y-ECCO Literature Reviews – How to participate?

Contribute to the Y-ECCO Literature Review section and have your article published in the ECCO News journal and on the e-CCO Learning Platform

Y-ECCO Members who are looking for an opportunity to actively participate in an ECCO activity are most welcome to contribute a Literature Review article for one of the next issues of ECCO News.

The concept of the Literature Review (max. word count: 1,000 words) is to highlight the key findings and the importance of a recent leading article in the field of Inflammatory Bowel Disease (published in a high impact journal, for example New England Journal of Medicine, Lancet, Gastroenterology, or Gut). Y-ECCO Members who are not sure about the article selection, can approach Dominik Bettenworth from the Young ECCO Committee (Y-ECCO) and will be provided with a selection of articles out of which they can choose.

In addition to their articles, the authors are invited to send a short self-description and a picture, which will both be published in ECCO News and will guarantee visibility for the authors. Y-ECCO Literature Reviews are regularly published so that articles can be submitted at any time during the year.

Finally, the Y-ECCO Literature Reviews are now integrated in the ECCO e-Library on the e-CCO Learning Platform, which will further increase the visibility of these Y-ECCO contributions.

We are looking forward to receiving your contributions!

Dominik Bettenworth

Y-ECCO Literature Review Admin

dominik.bettenworth@ukmuenster.de